CONFESSION MAY INVOLVE MANY

Jitney Driver, Unsavory Reputation, Grilled by Ku-Klux

By Associated Press. HENRYETTA, Dec. 2.—The Henryetta Ku-Klux Klan varied its plan of contributing floral emblems to deceased war heroes, dispensing charity among the poor and lifting mortgages from widows' homes, to obtaining confessions from auto thieves and wielding the lash on plump and boozing peddlers, Wednesday night.

er of unsavory reputation, who has frequently been in the toils of the police, but was no sooner out than he again began plying his outlaw vocation, was the victim of the righteous indignation of the Ku-Klux, and is said to have confessed to a catalog of crimes varying from booze peddling, procuring, pimping and acting as fence for stolen automobiles. Menefee was taken to an abandoned mine north of the city at a late hour of night by a score or more of masked men and questioned as to certain auto thefts, whisky peddling and procuring, but stoutly denied any knowledge of any such criminal acts.

Ottawa County Hunters Up in Arms Against Influx Quail Hunters

NARCISSE, Dec. 2.—While sportsmen in some of the towns are getting their dogs and guns in readiness for the opening of the quail season, some of the farmers in this part of Ottawa county, who have heretofore suffered more or less damage and inconvenience on account of hunters are by no means jubilant.

SEEK SUSPECTED OFFICER

Special to The World. ENID, Dec. 2.—While Deputy Sheriff Bellairs, Hobbs and Davis were returning from a raid made upon the store of a man named Darrington at Hayward, they were trailed into Enid by officers from Covington, who thought they were on the trail of a Nash car reported stolen from Newkirk and headed in this direction. Attracted by the Nash car, they followed all the way into Enid and found upon the store of a man named Darrington at Hayward, they were trailed into Enid by officers from Covington, who thought they were on the trail of a Nash car reported stolen from Newkirk and headed in this direction.

What Japan Wants

Japan "stands alone as the great obstacle in the way of amicable settlement of the Pacific and Far Eastern questions," declares a recent press dispatch from Washington. Nor was the skeptical attitude of this correspondent toward Japanese intentions at the Arms Conference unique. Many other journalistic observers, noting how much Japan has at stake in any readjustments in the Orient, waited apprehensively for some move from Japan that would doom the Conference to failure. But instead, we find Japan falling in line with other Conference Powers behind the principles submitted by the United States Government for the reduction of naval armament and for the solution of the Far Eastern problems. True, Japan has suggested certain modifications in the navy-reducing program—but so have other Powers. Even H. G. Wells, whose comment on the Conference has not been exuberantly optimistic, says that "we already seem further from war in the Pacific and nearer security there than at any time in the last two years." Among other assurances given by Japan, Admiral Kato informed the Washington correspondent, in answer to a direct question, that "Japan considers Manchuria as being a part of China." But such assurances, correspondents tell us, leave the Chinese cold. "We may have faith in pledges made by other Powers," writes the associate editor of the Shanghai Shun Pao, "but we still entertain grave doubts in those made by Japan."

Nowhere else can you get a more comprehensive sweep of public opinion on all the ins and outs of the Arms Conference at Washington than by reading THE LITERARY DIGEST each week. The leading article in this week's number, December 3, 1921, treats of the attitude of Japan in the parley and the impression that this attitude makes upon the various nations interested.
